Base Honor Guard

The honor guard is always seeking highly motivated, proactive and physically fit Airmen and NCOs that epitomize the “whole-person” concept and internalize the Air Force core values. Volunteers are needed for both rotational and non-rotational commitments. Opportunities for enlisted Airmen, grades E-1 through E-6, exist to lead and fill multiple roles within the organization. Honor guard duty is extremely rewarding and a great way to represent the Hill AFB and give back to our Air Force family.

Heroes Reading Program

Heroes Reading Program is seeking volunteers to read to children in the local public elementary schools. The program has been held in over two dozen schools where local airmen read age-appropriate books to each class and then open the time up for questions about their service in the military. Monthly dates have been scheduled for this event because it provides an incredible opportunity to interact and build good will in our own communities.

If interested in volunteering for the upcoming or future dates, please contact the primary POC listed below.

Looking for a promotion?...You could be Col Conserve for a day!

The 75 CES Energy Management Team has recently received its Energy Mascot, Col Conserve. We respectfully request volunteers from any/all Hill AFB military members looking for a positive community service opportunity. This character will make appearances periodically throughout the base and local community when requested. It is a full bodied costume and the individual volunteer will have an escort (wingman) from our office with them at all times.

After any event we would be happy to assist by providing a short bullet identifying the event and the community service involvement of the member for EPR, decoration or award purposes if requested.

STARBASE Hill

Would you want to build a CO2 Dragster, code a robot through a challenging obstacle course, or work with students in a STEM project? Well, we have the opportunity for you! STARBASE Hill continually looks for mentors to join and guide our communities' 6th and 7th grade students who participate in our exciting hands-on, mind-on program. We look to educate and enthuse these students to increase participation in future STEM opportunities and careers. As a mentor, you will advise the 6th graders in engineering and manufacturing a CO2 dragster using computer-aided design (CAD) software and actual tools in the hopes they produce a race winner! If you choose to work with the 7th graders, you will accompany the students into our Sphero Olympics where you will usher them through activities encompassing coding, genetics, evolution and physics! Both these opportunities build the STEM professionals and leaders of tomorrow! If interested, don't hesitate, contact us today!
